E. E. Brady shipped the first carload of celery from the Sanford crop of 1909 yesterday. It ought to bring a fine price.

The President has received a severe rebuke by Congress—his message being tabled—Lake City Index.

And what did Congress receive?

One little town in Alachua county shipped thirty carloads of beans this year. No wonder there is a better feeling between the North and the South. Center Hill and Boston now have a fellow-feeling.

The Volusia County Record "wonders why there is such a scramble after the office of sheriff, a dangerous position to hold at all times." That's easy, Ben. Because a $50 a month man can hold the job and make from $250 to $350 a month at it. Ask another, Benj.

Governor Gilchrist has appointed Hon. Adrian P. Jordan, editor of the Punta Gorda Herald, pure food inspector. It is a worthy appointment and reflects credit on the good judgment of the new governor.

Mr. Jordan's ability and character place him easily in the forefront of our State's citizenship.—Starke Telegraph.] Hunger, it is said, is the best sauce. In this case we suppose the poor editor will pronounce all grub good. But there's really, one satisfaction in Jordan getting the job. He will be able to travel the State, and the other editors will have an opportunity to shake his honest hand occasionally.

If Governor Gilchrist wishes to secure and retain the confidence of the people, one mighty easy way would be to let his private secretary—or any one of the many secretaries, who is onto the job—send out weekly letters to such members of the State press as would like to print them, giving an epitome of the week's official happenings at the State capital. For all the light thrown onto the scene, Tallahassee is might as well be in Kalmarzoo as where it is. The people's business is conducted—we believe—in an honorable and just manner—but what is this business? Give us an official reporter, governor.

At the recent election, Brevard elected a county treasurer who resided at Rockledge, whither he expected to take the books of his office. He has been informed that he cannot do this, as all county officers must maintain their offices and keep the books of their offices at the county seat. The provision of the constitution regarding this matter reads:

Article XVI, section 4.—Miscellaneous Provisions—All county officers shall hold their respective offices, and keep their official books and records, at the county seats of their counties; and the clerks and sheriff shall either reside or have a sworn deputy within two miles of the county seat.

Does this include the tax collector as well as the treasurer? If it does, it will effect Volusia county, whose tax collector maintains his office at New Smyrna.

ENTERPRISE.

Last Saturday a party of eight went deer hunting and brought in two nice ones.

Sunday afternoon two launch parties were over from Sanford.

Mr. I. M. Vickers, of New York, is here for the benefit of the Benson Spring water and is located at Epworth Inn.

Mr. Sep Haynes and party of friends, of DeLand, were over Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Williams, representing Van Deman Company, of Jacksonville, was in town today.

Mrs. Jas. Gaines, of Oak Hill, is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. S. Davis. Miss Emma Tucker returned from Jacksonville last Saturday.

Mrs. Dan Peabody, of Sanford, is here the guest of Misses Tina and Emma Tucker.

Mr. Sturgiss, of Sanford, preached Sunday in the chapel.

Mrs. Jennie Bond and daughter and sister-in-law, Mrs. Allman, of Lithonia, Ga., are at Mrs. S. S. Davis.

Rev. Campbell Gray held divine service Sunday in All Saints Episcopal church.

OSTEEN

Mr. Pittard and wife, of Athens, with a brother of the latter, Mr. C. B. Bishop, of Rutledge, Ga., spent several days at Mr. J. E. Pattillo's this week. This party went on a fishing excursion Tuesday to Hickory Slough and reported plenty of "good bites," but just a few brim.

The reading circle met at Mrs. Edwin Pattillo's last Friday, with a most social and interested group of listeners. Among those present were Mrs. Blauvelt, Mrs. King, Miss Keown, Misses Minnie White, Nellie and Adele Pattillo, Messrs. Brooke, Enright, Lewis and Crawford Pattillo. When Miss Keown had finished a delightful reading, all found oranges and cake by the dining room fire. The next reading is to be held at Mrs. Alfred Pattillo's residence.

Mrs. Philip Leonardy and two sons, Charles and Phil, were visiting friends in Osteen this week.

Mr. Barrie is doing very efficient service as nurse, or companion with "Grandpa Pattillo," kindly sitting up night after night.
